HOME TOWN PAPER WEEK

It is very rare that the average newspaper boasts its own business, but gives quantities of space in boosting the affairs of others.

Somebody suggested that it was time for the newspapers of the country to adopt a week in which their own business be given precedent and the PRESS thoroughly endorses the idea.

The date set is the second week in November, from the 7th to the 12th, including that great world event, Armistice Day.

The official title for the week will be "Subscribe for Your Home Town Paper Week."

Thousands of papers will join in this event, and our readers will hear more about it as time goes on.

Ever ready to help in any cause that is in the interest of a better community, better living conditions, and better government, we now ask the readers and advertisers of the PRESS to turn and lend a hand during "Subscribe for Your Home Town Paper week," and boost for us.

LETTER FROM REV.

ROBERT LEAR

COUNTY FAIR AND

BABY SHOW

I closed my Conference year's work in Missouri Sunday evening September 18th, which made my 16th revival for the year. About 7,000 conversions and reclamations with 416 accessions to our church and 118 to other churches; four Epworth League societies, one Womans Missionary Society, one Junior Missionary Society and one Sunday school were organized. A church debt was provided for, two pastor's salaries increased and thank offerings for three others were taken.

One hundred eighteen family altars were erected with 500 pledges for daily prayer and Bible reading. One young man restored to the ministry, some subscriptions taken for both the Christian Advocate and the Central Methodist. In all I have had a great year. I regret very much to be absent from Conference at this present session. I am now leaving for Norfolk, Va. and from there to Winnfield, La.

A small admission fee will be charged at the gate to apply on the premium list and general expenses. Any surplus fund left over will be set aside as a fair fund.

Don't forget the date, brush up your horse and enter for the big show.

EVANSVILLE EXPOSITION

BEGAN TUESDAY

She who can cook as well as she who doesn't think she can is being pleased at the Evansville Exposition that began at Evansville Tuesday and continues until Oct. 1.

Delicious breads, cakes and canned foods and other home made products, the best in the country, are on exhibition according to Publicity Director, Mose Strouse. Needlework of all kinds, fancy and plain, will be a feast to the souls of the women that attend. Those who are attending see the latest in everything.

There are many things not made by women that are fully as interesting. Fruits and vegetables, boys' and girls' work, farm-products of all kinds, and other things of like nature are pleasing the immense crowds. The splendid exhibits of horses, cattle, swine and poultry are attracting much attention.

An entertainment program of high quality has been arranged. The features include a horse show, music, vaudeville and lesser attractions. Ice cream cones, balloon, "lemon" of all shades and colors, and spicy "red-hots" and all the other things that entice the kids at the fair abound.

Those interested in the educational features of the fair may learn more about the prizes totalling $12,500 to be awarded by writing to Publicity Director Strouse.

M. H. S. OPENS SEASON WITH VICTORY

Farm Bureau Notes

Tuberculin Testing

The Marion High School foot-ball team opened the season Friday with an 80 to 0 victory over the Frances High School team. This is the first year that Frances has had a team and the boys showed up well for their inexperience, however they were not a match for the fast Marion aggregation.

When the game was called Frances won the toss and elected to receive. "Mutt" Wilson did the kicking for Marion. Frances failed to make down and Marion scored a touchdown on their first play. Following this Marion seemed to score at will, Frances holding them for down only one time. Marion never punted during the entire game.

Frances failed to make first down during the game, only a few of her plays netted any gains at all.

About twenty men were out in Marion uniform and every one got a chance to show what they could do. Only three Marion boys, Wilson, Allen, and Brown, played the entire game. The whole team showed wonderful form for this early in the season and few fumbles were made by the Marion squad.

The officials were Lamb, referee; Daugherty, umpire; Shelby timekeeper and McConnell, head linesman.

The local squad goes to Princeton Friday for the first hard game of the season. Both Coach Brown and Manager Meroney are very optimistic as to the future games of the season.

TO ESTABLISH NEW BUSINESS

Mr. D. O. Carnahan has announced that he will leave Marion the last of this month to establish a business in another city. Mr. Carnahan for a number of years has been one of the leading merchants of this city and has made many friends who will hate to see him leave town.

He has made arrangements to continue his store in this place under his supervision and under the direct management of Mr. F. G. Cox and Mrs. Elizabeth Pope. Mr. Cox is an experienced merchant and Mrs. Pope has been connected with the store for some time.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Carnahan regret to see them leave but are sure they will make good in the new field. His many customers will be glad to learn that he has made arrangements to continue his store here.

KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Forest Stone, formerly of Tolu, a brother of D. W. Stone, was killed in an auto accident in Cairo, Illinois. The body was brought to White Graveyard near Irma for burial.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. W. T. Oakley.

The Tournament of Division Three was held at Seminary Springs on September 16. Eight schools were represented.

aspects of agriculture. One of its precepts is that "the farmer is more important than the farm." It is organized on the basis of standing committees made up of specialists in the various fields of country life.

At the third annual conference of the organization held recently in Springfield, Mass., the subject was "Rural Organization." The speeches indicated that country people are at last awake to their greatest problem—namely, that of organizing themselves for co-operative action. It was declared at this meeting that already progress in country life is evident along every line of human endeavor that makes existence more satisfying. The consolidation of schools is proceeding with great rapidity; county and traveling libraries are extending library service to increasing numbers of rural residents; visiting nurses are being requested in numbers larger than the supply; numerous movements looking toward physical education and recreation are in progress;
colleges, normal schools and universities are introducing courses in rural sociology.—Chicago Post.

MAKE STONE WALL ARTISTIC

Everything Depends on Selection of Right Materials and Proper Care
in Construction.

In building the wall of stone there are a number of things to be observed where success is desired. The wall should be well bonded together, the lime-ts over the windows should be strong, the foundations should be adequate to prevent cracks, the method of laying should be artistic, and the form of jointing in harmony with it.

All native stones used for rubble wall construction have certain characteristics of color and formation.
Certain stones will split easily into long, flat shapes, others break into jagged, irregular patterns, while others are so soft that they lend themselves to easy shaping in squared blocks of regular size. Sometimes, even the neighborhood may be filled with round field stones, which can be used to imbed into the face of the wall and produce a surface of round lumps. Whatever is the character of the native stone it should be used in its simplest form and not forced into imitation of some other type. The soft brown sandstones which are seen in some colonial houses are easily cut and squared; but to cut up a hard stone into such carefully shaped blocks in imitation of this colonial style would not only be a waste of money but a waste of artistic effect.—"The Construction of the Small House," by H.
V. Walsh, in Architecture.

Chickweed a Pest in Lawns.
The most successful method of combatting common chickweed in lawns, according to specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture, is to rake out as much of the weed as practicable in the early spring, using a fine-tooth garden rake. This will seriously retard the growth of the weed. Commercial fertilizer should be heavily applied immediately after raking and the lawn liberally seeded with a good lawn-grass mixture. The heavy growth of grass which should result will tend to crowd out the shallow-rooted chickweed. Constant mowing and watering throughout the growing season will hamper the spread of the pest. The lawn should also be rolled each spring.

One method of destroying chickweed is to allow chickens to have access to the lawn early in the spring. Extensive experiments have been made with chemicals for destroying chickweed,
but without marked success.

Cultivate Young Trees.
Fruit trees should be cultivated during the growing season, as carefully as corn is cultivated. The soil should be pulverized to conserve the moisture and to prevent the growing of grass and weeds. Hoe the soil immediately around the trunk, which cannot be cultivated by horse cultivation. This cultivation should cease the middle or latter part of July. This will give the tree time to harden. Ceasing cultivation will cause the tree to stop growing and prevent the succulent condition, which would cause winter killing. An application of barn-yard manure near the tree but not immediately around the trunk is beneficial to its growth.

Rural Citizenship.
Wherever rural prosperity is reported of any county, inquire into it, and it will be found that it depends on rural organization. Whenever there is rural decay, if it is inquired into it will be found that there was a rural population but no rural community, no organization, no guild to promote common interests and unite the countrymen in defense of them.

Oman and Its People

Native Women of Oman.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)
But a step from lands first and longest known in the history of the world—Egypt, Babylon, Palestine—Arabia remains one of the world's most unknown regions. And in one of its least known corners is the independent state of Oman. Historically, politically and geographically, Oman has always been isolated from the rest of Arabia. Ever since the days of the caliphate, so far as communication with other Arabs is concerned, Oman was practically an island, with a sea of water on two sides and a sea of sand—the great Arabian desert—on the other. As a result, the people are even more primitive in their habits than the Arabs generally; and only recently have other towns than Muscat, the capital, opened their eyes to the world.

Oman is a relatively narrow strip of coast, bowed around the irregular eastern tip of Arabia. To the northwest it extends half way along the southern shore of the Persian gulf, into the head of which empty the historic Tigris and Euphrates rivers. From there it extends in a crooked, unbroken strip of varying width for nearly 1,000 miles, its southwestern extremity reaching almost to the mid-point of the flaring south shore of the Arabian peninsula.

The state has an area of 82,000 square miles, almost twice that of Pennsylvania. Although generally accepted statistics place the population at 800,000, Colonel Miles, who has seen more of the interior than any other recent traveler, estimates it at over 1,000,000. The capital, Muscat, and the adjoining town of Mutrah, have together about 25,000 inhabitants. The ancient capital, Rostak, which is inland, declined in importance after the Portuguese, during the remarkable growth of their colonial power in the Sixteenth century, pushed around the Cape of Good Hope and northward and eastward, occupying Muscat. The Portuguese remained in possession of this metropolis of Oman from 1508 until the middle of the Seventeenth century.

Travelers are not troubled with the heat at night, but during the day it is intense, and it is refreshing to come to an oasis (common in this part of Oman), where water bursts from a big spring, and trees and flowers grow in luxury. In the mountainous parts of Oman the roads run almost invariably along the wady beds; sometimes these are sandy water courses; again deep rocky ravines or broad, fertile valleys. Vegetation generally is tolerably abundant. Tamarisks, oleanders, euphorbias, and acacias are the most common trees and shrubs.

Some of It Unexplored.

The conquerors of Oman who gave it its present ruling family came from Yemen on the other side of Arabia, Ahmed bin Sa'eed, the leader, captured Muscat in 1741. The present sultan and imam, who came to the throne in 1913, is a descendant of this Eighteenth century conqueror.

At the beginning of the Nineteenth century, before European powers had determined upon the almost complete parceling out of Africa, Oman was almost an empire. It extended over a large part of Arabia, the islands to the north of Arabia in the Persian gulf, a strip of the southern coast of Persia, and a strip of the Indian ocean coast of Africa from the northeastern point near the entrance to the Red sea almost half way to the Cape of Good Hope. This African territory, including Zanzibar, comprised large parts of what later became Italian Somaliland, British East Africa and German East Africa. It also included the important island of Socotra, now under British control.

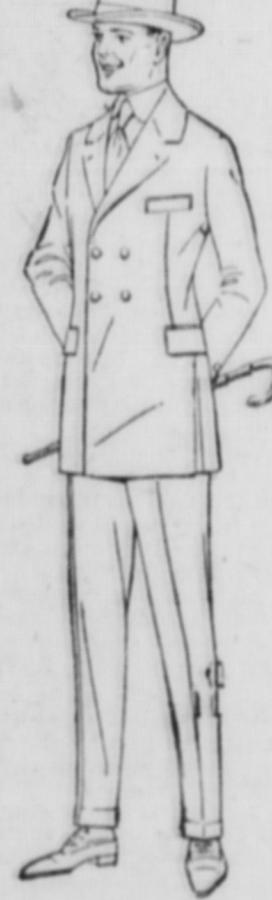

At that time the slave trade was flourishing, and it was the Arabs of Oman who explored the great interior of Africa long before the days of Speke and Livingstone. On the death in 1856 of Oman's "Alexander," the Sultan Sa'eed, the empire began to break up, one son becoming sultan of Zanzibar and another sultan of the Arabian territory. Subsequently all Asiatic possessions outside of Arabia were lost, except a few islands in the Persian gulf. About this time Oman came under the virtual protection of Great Britain through the Indian government, and a British consul and political agent has since been maintained at Muscat.

National Notables on Red Cross Convention Program Oct. 4 to 8

COLUMBUS, O.—(Special)—To focus attention of the nation at large on the fact that it has a peace time program, fully commensurate with its wonderful war achievements, the American Red Cross has called a convention to be held in this city Oct. 4-8, at which will be presented a program of such outstanding importance in the way of personnel as to challenge attention with the biggest conventions held anywhere in years by any civic or military body.

Beginning with President Harding, who has accepted an invitation to address the opening evening session, business of state permitting, the list includes military, civic, educational and health authorities of national and international importance.

The cabinet will be represented by Herbert Hoover, who will speak on "The Challenge of Childhood in Foreign Lands." The military will be represented by General J. J. Pershing, the navy by Assistant Secretary Roosevelt, and the Marine Corps by Major LeJeune.

Governor Harry L. Davis of Ohio will extend a welcome, followed by Mayor J. J. Thomas, while Dr. W. O. Thompson, President Ohio State University, will be one of the several prominent educators, including Dr. Livingston Farrand, President-elect of Cornell University; Dr. Henry Noble McCracken, President Vassar College, and Miss Charl Williams, President National Education Association.

Other outstanding features of the program, which contemplates three sessions daily, are: "Juniors at Work in Our Insular Possessions," W. W. Marquart; "The Future Builders of the Nation," Senator Frank B. Willis, Ohio; "The Red Cross in Disaster," Robert S. Gast, Pueblo, Colo.; "The Red Cross Public Health Nurse," Miss Lillian Wald of New York; "The Red Cross and the Nation's Health," Dr. W. A. Evans of Chicago, and "Volunteer Service," Mrs. Eleanor Robson Belmont, New York.

Addresses on topics to be assigned are expected from J. G. Emery, National Commander of American Legion; W. Frank Persons, Vice Chairman American Red Cross; Miss Alice Fitzgerald, director of nursing, League of Red Cross Societies in Switzerland; Dr. Albert Ross Hill, Vice Chairman in charge of foreign operations, and, if possible, General Allenby of the British Expeditionary Forces.

Bringing the program to a dramatic and spectacular conclusion, will be a pageant written for the occasion by Ruth Mongey Worrell, visualizing the history and development of the Red Cross work and its vision of the future. It will call into service 2,500 uniformed and costumed participants, and a trained chorus of 1,000 voices supported by a band or orchestra of more than 50. The pageant will be given in the Coliseum, where the major meetings will also be held, in an auditorium capable of seating 10,000 persons.

MISS CLARA D. NOYES, who returned only a few months ago from an extensive tour of the war-torn and disease-wracked nations of central and eastern Europe, will picture the dire need abroad, particularly among the hundreds of thousands of destitute children, in an address at the national convention of the American Red Cross, of which she is national director of nursing service. The convention will be held in Columbus, O., Oct. 4-8.

Miss Noyes is the head of the entire enlisted personnel of Red Cross nurses, now numbering over 37,000.

Fulfillment of its obligation to the ex-service men will be one of the main problems under discussion at the convention of the American Red Cross in Columbus, O., Oct. 4-8.

Many friendships which had their inception overseas are expected to be renewed when nurses who saw active service abroad during the World War and veterans of some of the hottest battles of the great conflict meet in Columbus, O., Oct. 4-8, during the convention of the American Red Cross.

The national convention of the American Red Cross at Columbus, O., Oct. 4-8, is the first gathering of its kind in any country in the world.

WAR DEPARTMENT ENCOURAGES BETTER HORSE BREEDING

Furnishes Thoroughbred Stallion Service Free; Pays Liberal Prices For Foals. Many Kentucky Farmers Owning Thoroughbred Mares Find Breeding More Profitable Than Farming.

No farmer, breeder or other good citizen who owns a good mare should fail to realize the fact that he may have an actual pocketbook interest in the present plan of the Government to improve our horses and stimulate the production of them.

While special effort is being made not to place the Government's thoroughbred stallions in sections where they will conflict or compete with privately-owned thoroughbred horses, conditions with respect to the important question of "breeding up" already are markedly better—so much so that few owners of acceptable brood mares have not now ready access to the services of a tried, and otherwise excellent, thoroughbred stallion.

The Government is rapidly acquiring a sufficient number of these horses, both by the gift of patriotic breeders and by purchase. All are good sound individuals, registered in stud books—they are horses of all-round superiority; having been acquired either by reason of their accomplishments on the turf or their pedigrees.

Each is available for public service on very liberal terms. Owners of sound mares with a square trotting gait may breed to them free of charge, the Government is given an option on the foal at three years of age for $150.00. This option, however, will be waived or canceled upon payment of a nominal fee. Thus, the owner is free to choose his market, which he may often do at a handsome profit. "Lately", remarked a farmer from Shelby County on the train with whom the writer chanced to be, "a colt or filly from one of my three thoroughbred mares nets me more profit than a season's work out on the old place."

Jack and mule dealers also should avail themselves of the opportunity to breed to these thoroughbred sires.

Never was the time when good, useful horses were so scarce and so sought after. They are wanted for the army, on our farms, and in commercial pursuits. This, despite the motor-driven vehicle. The following table of statistics, a compilation by the National Association of Allied Horse Interests, Providence, R. I., graphically illustrates the increasing demand for the horse in eleven cities representing a combined population of more than 2,800,000:

Number of Horse-Driven Vehicles Licensed for Business Purposes in Eleven Cities During 1910, 1911, 1912, Showing Percent of Increase.

	1910	1911	1912	Increase Percent
Baltimore, Md.	15,421	15,538	15,680	1.07%
Boston, Mass.	15,833	16,656	17,100	8.00
Buffalo, N. Y.	11,778	11,718	11,900	1.04
Galveston, Texas	1,713	1,742	2,186	27.61
Mobile, Ala.	1,217	1,311	1,320	8.46
Pittsburg, Pa.	10,264	10,003	11,148	8.21
Providence, R. I.	5,321	7,804	9,044	69.90
Richmond, Va.	3,900	3,452	3,514	4.58
Vicksburg, Miss.	140	160	150	7.14
Worcester, Mass.	317	681	1,788	148.58
Salt Lake City, Utah	502	510	10,5	110.16

The United States Government—adopting the attitude arrived at long since by the far older and more experienced European countries—now, fully realizes that the loss, or even the stultification, of the thoroughbred industry would be a national calamity. Meanwhile, the impetus of government participation in the work of increase and betterment of our supply of horses and mules is of particular significance to Kentucky farmers—they are in position to reap a personal business advantage, besides rendering a patriotic service to the country as a whole.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

THE QUESTIONER.

WHEN Shakespeare wanted to express the tragedy involved in the snuffing out of the life of his most intellectual character, he did it by these words, "The rest is silence."

He might have put it in another way, by saying that Hamlet would ask no more questions. For that was his most disconcerting habit.

Keeping silence before a puzzling world, and a puzzling universe, is something that man has never done.

The human being who just asked the reason for the first nightfall and the first appearance of the stars stood on the threshold of all modern scientific investigation.

So, if it were necessary to find a definition of man which would differentiate him from all the rest of creatures, it would be sufficient to say of him: "He is the animal that asks questions."

Rudyard Kipling in a striking line talked of "the law of the jungle."

The writers of fables have not pulled the long bow in attributing to the beasts the sense of justice, even if they were making fun of society in doing so. So the lion stands for the maker of rules, and the monkey for him who evades them.

So law is not peculiar to the children of Adam.

The animals knew political economy. "Go to the ant thou sluggard," said King Solomon.

This little creature shows what can be done through the organized efforts of thousands of insects, whose operations could be stopped in a moment by the foot of a passing giant in the shape of a mischievous boy.

So business organization is not exclusively human.

It is impossible to look at the comb of a beehive without realizing that the creatures who made it know geometry and architecture.

The cells are so constructed as to give the maximum of strength with the minimum of expenditure in the way of material.

So the Brooklyn bridge, or the dome of St. Peter's, is not a proof of human superiority.

There is a solitary eagle to be seen every day, soaring over a lake in western Ontario. Once he had a mate. But she disappeared one winter. Since then the widower has never married. The natives say that it is the habit of these birds to be perpetually true to their first and only love.

So constancy is not the exclusive virtue of our race.

When Christ wanted to express his affection for Jerusalem, he could think of nothing better to say than that he would have gathered the people about him, as a hen gathers her chickens under her wings. This timid bird will face any peril if she thinks that her young are in danger.

In the same way the bear of the North woods, which will fly before men under ordinary circumstances, will fight to the death if she thinks her cubs are threatened.

So family affection and devotion do not set mankind apart from the rest of the animal kingdom.

Only the other day a raccoon at the Bronx zoological gardens in New York, was in danger of starving to death because the gatekeeper who had tamed and petted him had been sent to the hospital. The animal would not take food from a stranger.

So fidelity and gratitude are not confined to the lords of creation.

But there is no reason to believe that the beasts of the jungle that have their hunting laws, or the ants that lay up their store for winter, or the bees that know practical geometry, or the eagle that mourns his dead wife forever, or the hen that protects her chickens, or the bear that is fearless of rifles, or the raccoon that is faithful to his master, ever asked any questions about the why and wherefore of things.

On the other hand, from the dawn of history, we find man worrying over the riddle of the universe. This too is in spite of the fact that, even in the beginning of things he felt that he would never be able to solve it.

So he invented language to convey his questions to his neighbors and alphabets to write them down for his children. He invented mathematics in order to compute the motions of the stars.

By all his questioning he has succeeded in pushing back the curtain that hangs around his universe. Yet he knows perfectly well that in spite of all that his Newtons, Darwins, Einsteins and Curtes may do, what Herbert Spencer called "the unknowable" will always elude him.

But as long as he follows the gleam he will be man, as God made him.

Mother's Cook Book

The wisest pilgrim is the one who goes along the highway, hour by hour constant to take the rain or shine the skies have sent; Who counts his riches in each budding rose; Each song the thrush through vernal branches throws; Each marvel of the sunrise; each dusk blend Of mystery and fragrant sacrament; Each star that in the heaven burns and glows.

PALATABLE DISHES.

A HANDFUL of green onions, a cupful of cooked rice, a cupful of thick white sauce, a cold hard-cooked egg and a little cheese may make a very palatable luncheon dish. Cook the tender young onions until well done; drain. Butter a small baking dish and put in the rice, cover with the drained onions, add a sprinkling of grated cheese the white sauce and bake until bubbling hot. Serve from the dish. The rice should be well seasoned with butter, or with a chicken broth while it is cooking.

Banana Cream.

Slice three ripe bananas, press through a sieve, add a small box of crushed strawberries, reserving part of the juice; beat together lightly and set on ice to cool. Serve in glass cups with whipped cream to which has been added the reserved strawberry juice. Serve very cold.

During the hot weather the simple and less expensive desserts appeal to the housewife. Frozen dishes, when prepared at home, are always acceptable and cost very little.

Lemon Sherbet.

Take three lemons, two cupfuls of sugar and a quart of rich milk. Mix the sugar and lemon juice, add a grated rind if desired, then stir in the milk. The mixture will curdle when frozen will be smooth and very palatable. Serve in sherbet glasses.

BUTTER SHIPPED IN SUMMER

Parcel Post Will Prove Entirely Satisfactory If Proper Conditions Are Maintained.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Parcel post shipments of butter are likely to be subjected to conditions especially during the summer, which may cause deterioration and injure the quality of the butter. It is highly desirable, say specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture, that every possible precaution be taken before shipment. Particularly is this true of farm-made butter, because conditions affecting its quality and condition usually cannot be controlled as easily as in creameries. Farm-made butter, however, should be marketed just as satisfactorily as creamery-made butter when it is properly made and prepared for shipment.

It is necessary to maintain proper conditions in the care of the milk and cream and the making of butter if a marketable product is to be produced. Too much importance, it is said, cannot be given to maintaining cleanly conditions in the stable and in other places where the milk, cream, or butter are produced or kept, for they absorb odors and spoil very quickly. It is important, too, that these products be kept in a cool place. High temperatures should always be avoided, as they produce a soft, oily condition of the butter which is undesirable.

In manufacturing butter on the farm or in a factory the buttermilk must be removed and washed out, and the proper amount of salt must be incorporated evenly. Frequently parcel post shipments of farm butter are unsatisfactory to customers because proper methods were not used in making it, and the quality and condition of the butter thereby injured before it was shipped. For the satisfaction of customers it is important that a uniform quality of butter be produced.

Methods used in preparing butter for parcel post shipping depend largely upon the local conditions and style of package used. To insure delivery in the best possible state, butter, after being packed, printed and placed in cartons, should be chilled or hardened thoroughly before it is shipped.

One of the most satisfactory ways of preparing butter for shipment is in regular one-pound prints, the standard print measuring 2½ by 2½ by 4½ inches. Every pound print should be neatly wrapped in regular butter parchment or paper. A second thickness of such paper has been found to add materially to the carrying possibility of the butter. Wax paper may be used for the second wrapping. As a further protection to the print, it should be placed in heavy manila paraffin cartons, which may be obtained from folding paper-box companies, either plain or printed as a stock carton or with a special private brand.

Corrugated fiber-board shipping containers of various sizes may be obtained for shipping one-pound prints of butter. These boxes or containers practically insulate the butter and furnish much protection against heat. Further protection may be obtained by wrapping the container in stout wrapping paper. The whole should be tied securely with a strong cord. In tying the twine it should be drawn tightly around the package so as to insure its proper carriage.

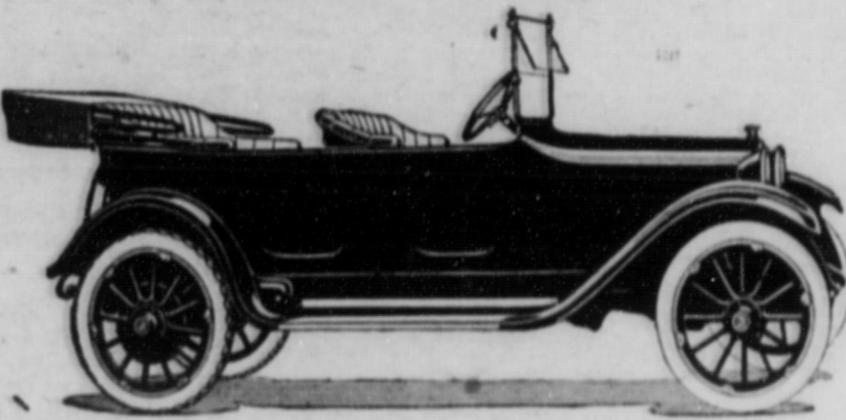

Some persons ship butter by parcel post in improvised or home-made containers. Clean, discarded, corrugated paperboard cartons are obtained from the grocer or other merchant at small cost or frequently without any cost at all. It is possible to cut a piece of paper board in such shape and size that when it is folded it will form a satisfactory carton.

LIKE FEEDING COWS IN DARK

Wisconsin Farmer Praises Cow-Testing Association as Guide-Board to Better Dairying.

"When I bought my farm two years ago there was a herd of scrub cows on it," writes a Wisconsin farmer to a field agent of the dairy division, United States Department of Agriculture. "I joined the cow-testing association, and soon found that my scrub cows were a failure, so I disposed of them and bought some purebred and grade Holstein cows. The cow-testing association is a guide-board on the way to better dairying and a big saving in feeds, as one can feed to so much better advantage where the production is known. Trying to feed without records of your cows is like feeding in the dark."
